GANSON TRIAL AT ALFRED

Corporal of Marines Accused of Manslaughter

Thought Responsible for Killing of Private Rasmussen

Corporal Simeon C. Ganson of the United States Marine corps, indicted Saco, who had made elaborate plans on the charge of manslaughter, was placed on trial in the supreme court at Alfred for the killing of Private Lewis E. Rasmussen, whose body was found near the baseball grounds at Kittery on March 25. Both men were attached to the prison ship Southern at Portsmouth. Ganson is a native of Cleveland, Ohio, and is 32 years of age.

County Attorney Asa A. Richardson in opening stated that the state would produce two witnesses who will testify to having seen the two marines fighting at Kittery a few hours before Rasmussen's body was found near a brook. The state presented 13 witnesses.

Before adjournment of the hearing was taken Thursday noon it became apparent that the case would narrow down to the questions, Did injuries alleged to have been received by Rasmussen in the fight with Ganson cause the former's death, or did Rasmussen die from exposure or natural causes. Thus far it has not been hinted that any third party would be implicated.

At first it looked as though the case would be much more complicated, for anticipating any claim that the defense might make that Ganson was not with Rasmussen at any time near the time of his death, County Attorney Asa A. Richardson produced two witnesses, above mentioned. These witnesses, Thomas Fisher, an electrician employed in the Portsmouth navy yard, and Joseph Goch, also a government employee, both testified that the combatants were a corporal and private respectively, but did not personally identify the corporal as Ganson, the respondent. It was while the county attorney was endeavoring to draw this identification out of the last witness, that George L. Emery, of Biddeford, attorney for the defense said that he would admit that it was Ganson and Rasmussen who were seen fighting. This admission immediately narrowed the question to the effect of injuries that might have been sustained by Rasmussen.

In outlining the State's case to the jury after court opened, Court Attorney Richardson said that the state would claim that when Rasmussen and Ganson came ashore on the afternoon of March 25, that they went to Portsmouth and were drinking together, that at about 2 o'clock they went to Kittery, and were there seen still drinking, that late in the afternoon, both Fisher and Goch saw the men fighting in the ball park, and that the next morning a marine named Peterson who lives on shore, while on his way to the navy yard in Portsmouth came across the body of Rasmussen lying with his head on a stone in a little brook just outside the ball field. Peterson reported the discovery to Captain William L. Hill of the prison ship Southern on which Rasmussen served as a marine, and Captain Hill told him to return and notify the civil authorities. In the meantime he went with Dr. Dyke, the body lay, and shortly afterward Dr. Edward E. Shapleigh, coroner of Kittery, appeared. The county attorney also said that he would produce two marines who would testify that they saw Ganson return to the ship the night before the morning on which Rasmussen's body was found. Thirteen took the oath as State's witnesses and the first called was Rowland W. Libby, a civil engineer of Saco, who had made elaborate plans of the scene of the alleged struggle between Rasmussen and Ganson. At first Judge Cornish demurred at going into all the detail, but Attorney Emery said that these plans would be very important in outlining the defense so Libby was allowed to explain his map.

The second witness called was Dr. Edward E. Shapleigh, coroner, who was called to take charge of the body of Rasmussen. Dr. Shapleigh described with great care that position in which he found the body of the dead marine, after stating that he had every reason to believe that no one had disturbed it until his arrival. The head was on a rock face down, the rock being in the middle of a diminutive brook.

The body lay across the brook so that the feet were on the bank. At this juncture in his narrative, Dr. Shapleigh came to a part of his description that is likely to prove a vital point in the case and a point of dispute also for a subsequent witness disagreed with him. The doctor stated that the right hand of Rasmussen was in the water.

"How far up on the hand did the water come?" asked Attorney Emery in cross examination.

"Up to the palm," replied the witness.

Later in the hearing John A. Grant a constable of Kittery who was also present at the examination of the body, stated that the water came up to the dead man's waist.

It is understood that the defense may claim that the water on a day which testimony shows was below freezing point, might have reached far enough to chill the blood in Rasmussen's pulse as he lay across the brook.

In cross examination Dr. Shapleigh estimated the temperature of the atmosphere as about 25 above zero on the night of March 25 and as about 28 above at 9 o'clock the next morning when he reached the scene. He further testified that the brook was not frozen at the point where Rasmussen's hand was, but that it was frozen over a little further above.

"The left arm was uplifted as if the man were warding off a blow," continued the coroner, "there were contusions over and under the right eye, although the skin was not broken; there were several scratches below the left eye and bruises on the right leg between the knee and the foot.

The coroner stated that after examining the body he visited the ball park where the fight was alleged to have taken place and found the snow and mud trodden up and six or eight drops of blood on the snow. He also found a broken half pint bottle, which evidently contained whiskey. The case, it is expected, will be finished today.

CONDUCTORS VISIT TAFT ON TRIP SOUTH

The Boston & Maine and New Haven railroad conductors, who left Boston some days ago in special trains to attend the 33d biennial grand division of the Order of Railroad Conductors, which opened at Jacksonville, Fla., Monday have visited and inspected many cities along the line and been well received at all points. They are in charge of D. A. Neal, a Portsmouth boy.

Upon leaving Boston, the conductors went to Washington where they met President Taft; to Richmond, where Governor Mann and Mayor Richardson posed with them for a photograph; stopped at Charleston, Jacksonville, and then went to Knights Key where they sailed on the Miami for Havana.

A TRIP TO EUROPEAN PORTS

The port of Rotterdam is one of the most interesting and progressive of the continental ports. A keen rival to Antwerp for third place in the novel race of the commercial supremacy of central Europe.

This port has been developed rapidly during the last half century. It occupies a most favorable location for the development on the North-erly bank of the River Meuse, the principal and natural outlet of the great Rhine district. Previous to 1863, navigation between Rotterdam and the sea, 18 miles, was most difficult, taking steamers several days to make the trip, and only those drawing 10 feet or less could navigate the river. In 1896 they constructed a new channel at the expense of $9,000,000, a distance of 14 miles, piercing the Hook at Holland. The city of Rotterdam paid 10 per cent of the cost and the government the balance. The depth of water in the new channel is 27 feet at low water so that the largest sea going vessels can make the trip from the north side to the city in two hours, where it formerly took several days.

No dues are levied on vessels moored in the river, so that there are 62 bays, accommodating 32 sea going ships that have been provided below the lower bridge; 60 sea going vessels arrive and depart daily from this port.

The new Meuse river passing through Rotterdam forms one large basin with the harbors connected at either side. There are eight quays from 1000 feet to 3000 feet long, with depth of water from 17 feet to 23 feet and 12 "harbors" with from 5 to 12 feet depth. These are used by the merchant craft and on market days they are overloaded with former type of Dutch vessels. The bridges are movable so that all these harbors can be reached by vessels without lowering their masts.

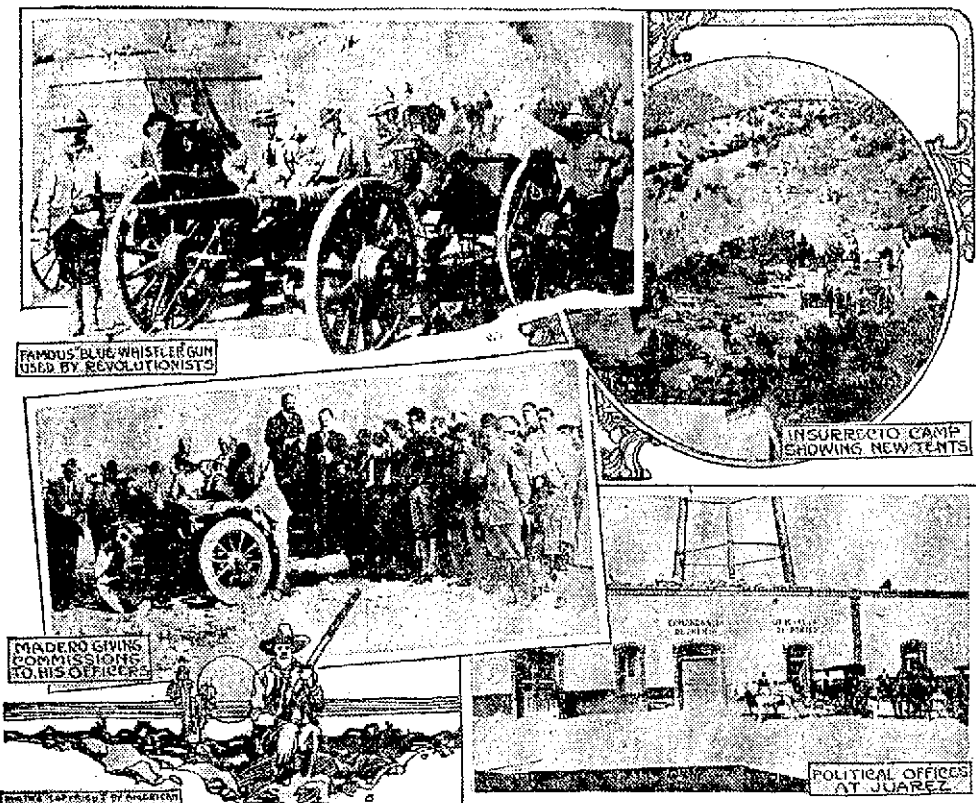

There are quays and harbors along the left banks of rivers. The port has more business and facilities for handling freight, railroads connecting the harbors and quays; dry docks for repairing their ships, and a fleet of dredgers to keep their channels clear.

Rotterdam has a total of about 1000 regular lines of steamers departing for various ports of the world on regular sailing days. The principal of one of the is the well known Holland-American line. The growth of the city has been phenomenal as that of its port. Since 1850 it has grown from a small city of 90,000 people to over 400,000 in 1908.

To show how water transportation dominates the situation, it is said that the railroad handles about ten per cent and the river and channels 90 per cent of the commerce of Rotterdam. Since 1870, the city alone has spent over $20,000,000 upon her harbor system, and $9,000,000 upon the new canal to the North sea, making a total investment of about $30,000,000.

The harbor system of Rotterdam is under the control of the municipal board of works, whose duties are similar to our board of public works. While the port of Amsterdam is not in the same class with that of her ambitious rival Rotterdam and other commercial ports, it is interesting to note her efforts to maintain her former prestige of Amsterdam as the "Princess of the Sea," by construction of great sea canals and their results. Amsterdam first commenced a channel 50 miles long in 1818-1823 to reach the North sea at Nieuwedied. This canal is seldom used. Since they have constructed a canal 15 miles long to the North sea at Ymuiden, this is the longest artificial sea route in the world. At the end of the canal is an artificial harbor of 40 acres. The canal and harbor cost $12,000,000, built by a company with financial aid from the state and city.

Fiercest Border Battle of Mexican Revolution Followed President Diaz's Offer to Resign.

Instead of resulting in the cessation of hostilities, as might have been expected, the offer of President Diaz to resign if peace were established resulted in a renewal of the disturbance with more bitterness than ever. The attack on Juarez came suddenly and after the revolutionists had been comparatively quiet for some time. All of the Madero troops that had been in camp near Juarez joined in the movement, and the cannonading and musketry firing were kept up for many hours. There was considerable loss of life. The plight of the wounded, both federal and revolutionist, was frightful. The groans and occasional screams of the men lying stretched out on the ground could at times be heard on both sides of the Rio Grande river.

Amsterdam has the Merwede canal which cost $4,000,000, which connects them with the South and Germany. This port is well supplied with docks developed within the last 25 years wholly by the city. It contains 10 miles of space and nearly 20 miles of railroads. The canal system is most interesting. The trees, houses, streets and canals are laid out in constructive circles or around the Dean 4 and the railroad station in the centre and the canals 80 in number. What it is said that 300 bridges are required to carry the city streets over the Heure de Gite "the city of many Bridges."

The Dynamite Cases.

Los Angeles, May 11.—In arguments on minor legal technicalities before Judge Bordenfell the lines of battle planned by the defense and prosecution in the dynamite cases were revealed. The prosecution will present its case in this order.

Testimony of victims and of expert witnesses to establish that the Los Angeles Times building was destroyed by explosion of dynamite.

Corroborating evidence and the confession of Orrie E. McNamara. This will be followed by the identification by seventeen witnesses who will swear that they knew J. B. McNamara as J. B. Byrne here and in San Francisco during September and October of last year.

An endeavor will be made to trace the prisoner almost to the building at First street and Broadway, where the Oct. 1 explosion occurred.

The case against J. J. McNamara will be centered upon correspondence furnished by McNamara, the books found at McNamara's office and the clocks and wire found in Indianapolis in this matter detective W. J. Burns will be called as a witness.

The defense will attack the allegation that the building was destroyed by dynamite, will assert that the explosion was caused by gas and will call experts. In attacking the McNamara confession the defense will call witnesses to establish an alibi for J. B. McNamara and J. J. McNamara. In every instance where the two brothers are identified by McNamara at a certain time and place the defense is expected to call witnesses to show that the men were in other localities. Testimony of the lodging-house keepers of San Francisco and the employees of the Giant Powder company will be attacked. The defense will contend that it is beyond the human mind to recollect the features of any person seen casually with such certainty that the possibility of mistake is precluded.

Experts on handwriting will be called to prove that letters alleged by McNamara to have been written by him, but were written by some person who attempted to simulate the writing of the union leader. A handwriting expert gave it as his opinion that McNamara registered at the Hotel Rosslyn under the name of T. F. McKee, Dec. 19 last year. McNamara has admitted that he registered at the Hotel Rosslyn under the name of McKee. It required a minute and expert comparison between the hotel register's signature and McNamara's known handwriting to determine from an independent source that McNamara spoke the truth. Under the law a confession is not admissible as evidence unless corroborating facts can be established.

NOTICE

To the Depositors of the Piscataqua Savings Bank, of Portsmouth, N. H.

The law of this state provides that it shall be the duty of every depositor in any savings bank, and of every shareholder of any building and loan association, to present his book for verification with the books of the bank or association, when notified so to do, at the times fixed by the bank commissioners.

The bank commissioners have selected the period between May 1st and June 1st in this year as the time for such verification. I have been appointed to examine the depositors' books and compare them with the books of the bank, with the object of correcting any errors that may exist, and for that reason I shall be at the Piscataqua Savings Bank between the hours of 9 a. m. and 2 p. m. each day the bank is open during the above named period, unless the work is sooner completed. On Saturdays the bank is opened from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m.

You are requested to present your deposit book, or to forward the same by mail or otherwise, to me at the bank at as early a day as convenient, if possible during the first two weeks and so avoid having a personal request sent to you. The book will be returned to you after comparison with your account as kept by the bank.

OLEA BULL VAUGHAN DIVORCED

Son-in-Law of Famous Violinist Gets Absolute Decree

THE HEARING IN DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS

In Supreme court at Alfred, Thurs. day Henry G. Vaughan of Cambridge was given an absolute divorce from Olea Bull Vaughan, only daughter of the late Mrs. Olea Bull of Eliot and Cambridge, widow of the world famous violinist.

The hearing in divorce proceedings was privately held before Judge Leslie C. Cornish, Veasey & Lyman, attorney of Bar Harbor, appearing for Mr. Vaughan and Ralph S. Bartlett of Boston for Mrs. Olea Bull Vaughan. The divorce was granted upon the grounds of desertion, but the nature of the testimony upon which the decree was granted it not known.

Mrs. Vaughan has for quite a long time been cared for at Lebanon and later in a physician's family at Rochester, and at the time the will case of Mrs. Bull came up in Probate court it was said Mrs. Vaughan was suffering from some mental ailment.

Mrs. Bull's will is still being contested in the York county probate court.

Going to the Wabash.

A special baggage car and two coaches were backed onto the yard tracks today, where 150 of the crew of the Wisconsin took the train and were transferred to this city and later took the westbound express for Boston. The draft is for the receiving ship Wabash at Boston.

Will Start Quay Next Week.

The lighter John Henry, owned by R. H. Beattie of Fall River, arrived at the yard today. This firm has the contract to build the $45,000 quay wall extension which will be started on Monday next. The granite for the extension, it is said, will come from Maine instead of Cape Ann, where the rest of the quay wall material has been quarried.

REMICK DINES ARTILLERYMEN

The members of the First Company Coast Artillery enjoyed a lobster supper on Thursday evening at the armory given by First Sergeant Austin Remick, who on that date completed ten years service as a member of the company. Besides Major C. B. Hoyt and the local militia officers a few invited guests enjoyed the feast.

Several addresses were made by the officers who complimented Sergeant Remick on his good work. Several of the members added much pleasure to the occasion in the way of entertainment.

Chicago, May 12.—Professor Tagito Takasugi and his baseball students from Waseda university, Tokyo, are now occupying considerable space in the limelight here.

Recently the Japs met and were defeated by the University of Chicago players by a score of 6 to 4.

Although the oriental exponents of America's own pastime did not win, they surprised the fans by putting up a fast and clever brand of ball. Aside from stage fright and an elementary attack, they kept the Maroons on their mettle throughout and showed some brilliant base running and fielding.

Omura, who pitched the entire nine innings, was on hand with steady wing and arm motion that fooled his opponents repeatedly. He fielded well, fanned two Maroons and held Chicago to seven hits, two of which were homers.

Of at first base, Ohara at second, Omachi at short and Kikuhori at third all starred in the infield in spots, while Yamaguchi was clever behind the bat. Mikami, Isoda and Yawata in the gardens were there with handy fielding. Captain Matsuda did not play, but will be in the game with Chicago Saturday, May 13. The Japs will meet several other college teams in this country before they return home next fall.

USE PACIFIC TYPE ENGINES

Beginning Monday nearly all the through passenger trains over the Eastern route of the Portland division will be handled by the new Pacific type of locomotive recently purchased by the Boston and Maine system.

The placing of these big machines on this division means a great improvement to the through service, especially during the summer season. In order that the engines could run over this route some extensive repairs were necessary on the Saugus river bridge.

PEOPLE'S OPINIONS

Editor Herald:

As there has been great deal of comment in the past in regard to our sailors and marines frequenting public places of amusements when in uniform. I think it is high time that all discussions should be laid to one side, and that the business men of Portsmouth take a hand in the matter.

NOTICE

To the Depositors of the Portsmouth Savings Bank, of Portsmouth, N. H.

The law of this state provides that, "It shall be the duty of every depositor in any savings bank, and of every shareholder of any building and loan association, to present his book for verification with the books of the bank or association, when notified so to do, at the times fixed by the bank commissioners."

The bank commissioners have selected the period between May 1 and May 31 in this year as the time for such verification. I have been appointed to examine the depositors' books and compare them with the books of the bank, with the object of correcting any errors that may exist, and for that purpose I shall be at the Portsmouth Savings Bank in regular business hours each day the bank is open during the above named period, unless the work is sooner completed.

You are requested to present your deposit book, or to forward the same by mail or otherwise, to me at the bank at as early a day as convenient, if possible during the first two weeks, and so avoid having a personal request sent to you. The book will be immediately returned to you after comparison with your account as kept by the bank.

JACOB H. GALLINGER.

No public servant of New Hampshire has ever yielded her more in the way of desired and beneficial results than Senator Jacob H. Gallinger. His nomination as President pro tempore of the United States Senate was acclaimed with a heartiness which, if it did not do his soul good, was most certainly gratifying to the host of friends and admirers who see in the popularity of the choice only the just reward of long years of faithful service for his state. The deadlock in the Senate does not alter the fact that he is the man for the place.

That through this and other glowing tributes to his worth Senator Gallinger has remained the same outwardly unmoved democratic, unassuming and honorable statesman is cause for rejoicing on the part of his followers. One has but to look in any direction to discover public men whose heads have been turned by less attention than Mr. Gallinger has received since the memorable March dinner in Washington.

It goes without saying that New Hampshire matters at the Capitol will receive due recognition, her interests will be guarded zealously, and Granite State visitors there may be sure of a sincere and cordial greeting as long as Jacob H. Gallinger is identified with the wheels of government.

BIRDSEYE VIEWS

Isn't it about time for J. P. Morgan to think about bringing his new million dollar library Westward Hoe?

A young man died from over-exertion in trying to catch a car, but it was not on Washington street, Boston.

It is reported that the North Kittery wild man is wild because he still has to pay toll to come to Portsmouth.

As evidenced by his communication in these columns, hasn't Portsmouth just a bit of a prodigy in her colored popcorn man?

A New York young woman wears her appendix on her watch chain, but that's nothing compared to wearing one's heart on one's sleeve.

Well, if Governor Foss is getting ready to pardon Jesse Pomeroy he had best make preparations to occupy the quarters which will be vacated.

So Portsmouth people have been eating decomposed clams; a Newburyport dealer having pleaded guilty to shipping them to this city. Shucks! probably it isn't the first time.

Senator Gallinger can never become President of the United States, but he can and will make a better President of the Senate than Pierce did President of the United States.

At the Washington Irving high school in New York two inches off the ground is conceded the correct length for a girl's skirt. One would naturally expect more from a high school.

The $6,000,000 North and South station tunnel and highway are now in the foreground. It ought to be possible to dig the first shovel in construction work very early next year. The Beverly, Cross and Richmond street route is agreed to as the best route and the city is ready to do its full share, says the Boston Record. Why not start now?

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

Excluding the Uniform.

It seems that even in Portsmouth, N. H., a city that derives a great deal of profit from the proximity of the United States Navy yard over across the Piscataqua river, keepers of amusement resorts are discriminating against the uniform of the sailors or, at least, against the sailors themselves for some reason not quite clear. At any rate, the proprietor of a dance hall refuses them admission, and there is talk of taking the matter to the courts.

It is unfortunate that these discriminations continue to be made and in places where one would least expect them. They suggest a kind of small snobbishness that ought not to exist—for no one would ever dream of keeping out an officer no matter what his regalia. But the right thus to discriminate is another matter, and the courts have generally decided that amusement purveyors may exclude anyone they choose for any reason whatever, or for no reason at all.

The proprietors of amusement resorts—and a good many citizens—need to be educated into the belief that the uniform of a sailor of the United States Navy is a badge of honorable service. The men themselves may help by conduct that can never be called to account.—Boston Post.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET

Will Twelve a Week Suffice Five Adults—Magnus Alexander's Estimate of Cost of Living Stirs up Bay State—Chinese Trees for New England Highlands Are Imported by Boston's Arboretum—The Late Col. Higginson was a Life Long Radical—Conservatory Alumni Are Urged to Write a Suitable College Song.

Boston, May 12, 1911.—More treasures for the American Kew, Boston's Arnold Arboretum at Jamaica Plain which has just been enriched by the accession of thousands of rare trees and shrubs from China. The famous living tree museum, about which an expert from Kew Garden, London, has recently written enthusiastically, is henceforth to be the nursery for many new flowers, strange fruits and useful plants which it is hoped may thrive and grow in this climate and in time become accepted features of New England gardens and forests. Collector Wilson of the Arboretum staff has lately returned from an extended search throughout China bringing species of conifers and other groups which resemble in some respects the trees of our native land and give promise of acclimating themselves easily. Hubberts who take their friends for the fascinating annual trip through the Arboretum in May time will find many surprises awaiting them in the presence of these foreign acquisitions.

Little Johnny Bostonbeans awaits with impatience the blast of the bugle announcing the approach of "the two Bills" with their exciting and mysterious wild West and far East shows. Col. Cody, like Madame Patti, firmly believe each tour to be "positively his last appearance" and this year he has added to the attraction of his own show the newest features of Pownee Bill's Far East—Pawnee Bill, also being about to celebrate his last visit to this country as an exhibitor. From their moment band wagon appears at the head of the procession until the last tent pole is struck the average Boston boy and girl will be as ecstatically delighted as in similar circumstances would be contemporary youngsters of Youngstown of Kanakake.

The late Col. Higginson was not only one of the last survivors of literary Boston of the nineteenth century, but one of the venerable men who never grew old. His youthful optimism kept him a moderate radical to the last, interested in equal suffrage, trades unionism and socialism, though always without acrimony or fanaticism. His "suffragism" was of long standing. One of the essays with which he created a considerable stir when the subject of woman's voting was less widely discussed than now was "Ought Women to Learn the Alphabet?" in which he took the ground that the equality of woman with man was conceded when the former was allowed to learn the alphabet.

BOYHOOD AND ALCOHOL

There are some things too awful to contemplate—one is the giving of alcohol in the guise of medicine to boys. We believe

Scott's Emulsion is the only preparation of Cod Liver Oil that contains absolutely no alcohol, drug or harmful ingredient of any sort.

A TIMELY TOPIC

BY

DR. HARVEY W. WILEY,
Chief Government Chemist.

The Whole Nation Has Acquired the Drug Habit

VERY little attention is paid to the subject of public health, and yet when two men meet the first thing they say is, "How do you do?" They inquire after each other's health, and each one will invariably say, even if he has one leg in the grave, "Never felt better in my life." Do we take any steps to avoid death except when we are crossing the streets of New York? There are other dangers besides the automobile that threaten us.

Look at the physicians' fees alone. More than one hundred thousand physicians living on princely salaries derived from the practice of medicine, and yet some of us are so tough that we refuse to die even with the greatest provocation.

When it comes to using drugs we are the drug habit nation, and therein lies a great menace to our public health. We don't think we are doing right unless we try everything. If you have a cold a hundred friends will advise a hundred remedies, and if you are as susceptible as I am you will try them all, and none of them is worth a cent from a curative standpoint. We must educate the people to the danger of the drug habit.

As for food, eat the best you can and don't stint yourselves. I have no sympathy with starvation diets.

phamnet. The Colonel was influential a few years ago in starting an organization to promote the study of socialism among the colleges.

Are you spending more than $12 per week, Mr. Familyman, to support your wife and five children? If you are, it is indicative that there is ignorance or wastefulness somewhere. At least, so says Magnus Alexander of Lynn, member of the Massachusetts commission on workmen's compensations. "If we should today advance the worker a dollar or two weekly," he said, "it is doubtful if we would materially reduce his poverty. It is more than likely he would only add to his economic wastefulness." True, Mr. Alexander, is the retort that has risen to many lips, is "economic wastefulness" means a sufficiency of nourishing food, decent clothing, average education, provision for the future rainy day, and a wee amount of healthful recreation, in order that the growing generation may be useful and intelligent citizens. A New York charity worker has challenged the Lynn man's figures as they apply to his city and others are saying that the basis of $12 per week may be all right in a few centres of population where the cost of living is unusually low, but it doesn't sound very promising for a normal, healthy citizenship in the next generation, nor for the comforts of old age for the present one.

A college song suitable for conservatory student and teachers to warble at banquets, picnics or class reunions ought to be a good one, musically speaking. It is no wonder, therefore, that a prize needs to be offered by the New England Conservatory Alumni Association for words and music suitable for a "Conservatory Song." Just any cheap doggerel set to bars of harmonious clapping may suit the purpose of collegians. Most of the jingles in the college song book, it is suspected, are what the trained musician would call trucky. Their banal commonplaceness has been challenged by no less distinguished a lay critic than President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard. Presently, it may be expected, more of Dr. Lowell's stuff will take advantage of the reciprocal relations between the university in Cambridge and the Conservatory in Boston to get a thorough grounding in the practice of musical composition before undertaking serious or comic songs. In the meantime twenty-five dollars in gold await the graduate or former pupil of the greatest of American music schools who sends in the best song before the first of next year. The judges will be five carefully selected members of the Conservatory faculty, who will reserve the right to reject all compositions if no one of them measures up to a standard high enough to insure permanency as a "Conservatory song." These financial rewards may not seem to be exactly that which greets the composer of such popular successes as "Somewhere" or "Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," but the honor of writing a song for a prosperous and kindly Alma Mater will undoubtedly stimulate many of the alumni and alumnae of the Boston institution to their most tuneful efforts.

CUT IT OUT!

Heroic treatment for a corn, which has no right to be on the human toe, is to open your handy old corn-razor and cut it out.

There are bad habits and practices which people ought to cut out, though no razor is needed for the amputating process. For instance, it is a bad practice to get in the habit of buying things through Mail Order concerns when you can buy to better advantage—the mutual advantage of yourself and your neighbor—at the stores in your own town.

If you have acquired this habit take the Razor of Resolution, hone it on the hone of Mutual Interests, strop it on the strop of Town Improvement and—

Local Events of Which a Half Century Has Dimmed the Memory

On May 12th 1854, which was as this year on a Friday, witnessed the fall of the Steeple of the Old North Church, on Market Square.

The event drew a large crowd to the vicinity of Market Square, eager to be present at so unusual a sight. Alonzo K. P. Deering, a famous rigger of those times assisted by a fellow workman, named Campbell, were in the belfry at noon cutting away the supporting timbers, and a rope attached to the steeple led down Market Street.

The structure proved strong in all its parts and refused several attempts to compel its fall, but at ten minutes past one o'clock it bowed to the inevitable, and came to south falling toward the Athenaeum.

Clouds of dust filled the air a few moments, but on clearing away, a throng of men, women and children collected about the scattered wreck.

Other local happening at this date, May 12, 1854 included the completion of a new organ for the Methodist church, built by a local firm, Messrs. Barton and Cobb, who did quite an extensive business in this line.

At a meeting held at Jefferson hall, presided over by Alfred W. Haven Esq., the project of extending the tracks of the Concord Railroad to the wharves on the Piscataqua River was discussed. The cost was estimated at $55,000. The attendance at this meeting was large and enthusiastic.

The ship "Midnight," a splendid specimen of the art of ship building from the yard of Messrs. Fernald and Pettigrew and Badger's island was completed and about to load at Boston to sail to California. Of graceful model and promising speed, with extra painter, and cabin work by Samuel Rowell, painter, and Edmund M. Brown cabinet worker, she spread her white wings to the breezes of the Piscataqua and the picture was quoted to be "like a belle in a blaze of glory, among the stars of the festive ball."

Built entirely of New Hampshire's white oak this beautiful example of Portsmouth's skilled mechanics was said to be the first oak built clipper ever launched in this country.

Henry Hastings of Boston was the owner and expended $10,000 more than the usual cost to secure this finest specimen that floated at that period.

GYPSIES ORDERED FROM CITY

A Trail of Depredations Marked Their Journey Eastward

A troop of Brazilian gypsies numbering 75 persons and traveling in about 20 wagons, struck the city at about 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, but their stay here was of short duration. This was not their fault, however—no one ever leaves Portsmouth willingly.

The cause of their unceremonious departure was due to the band's being recognized as the same which had been politely but firmly requested to leave York three years before as a result of certain objectionable propensities.

Officer Shannon told the commander in chief of the outfit that their room was more desirable than their company in Old Strawberry Patch, and the suggestion was acted upon.

That the gang had not undergone these characteristics in the meantime was shown at Newburyport, where they were held up Thursday forenoon by the police at the request of the Amesbury police.

James Colby of Amesbury said two women traveling with the band had picked his pockets of a pocketbook containing $30. The parties were described and the chief of the tribe was told that all would be held on suspicion unless the money was restored.

After a delay of an hour the chief told Acting City Marshal Ayres that they would settle, and the men of the tribe contributed to make up the sum lost by Mr. Colby.

The gypsies were then allowed to depart, with Portland as their objective destination. It was said the caravan had come over the road from Lawrence earlier in the day.

After leaving Market square Thursday afternoon the tribe continued eastward through North Kittery and Elliot and this forenoon it was reported that a trail of burglaries, hen-roosts and farmyards marked their passage, while a man in the North End was touched for all he had—65 cents.

MISSING MAN FORMERLY HERE

A clue to the whereabouts of Frank R. Howe of Boston, formerly of this city, who disappeared three years ago and whose father has been in Detroit, for the past few days trying to secure information of him, came to light Thursday when Clarence E. Miles, employed in a motor car factory at Detroit, remembered Howe as an employe in a factory in Wilkes-barre less than a year ago.

He said he believed Howe was now in New York city working as a chauffeur.

The Howes left Portsmouth some 15 years ago. The elder Howe conducted an antique store on Market street under the name of Frank L. Howe.

FEINSTEIN-KATZ

The civil marriage ceremony uniting Harry Feinstein of Winnipeg, Canada, and Miss Pauline Katz was performed at city hall today by Clerk Guy E. Corey.

On Monday evening next at Freeman's hall the religious ceremony will occur and will be followed by a reception to which the parents of the bride have issued many invitations.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Katz and the groom is recorded in the marriage intention at city hall as a cattle dealer. The affair on Monday night promises to be a big event.

BLOSSOMING OF STRAW HATS

Straw hats blossomed like apple buds today under the general influence of an 85 in the shade temperature and in defiance of the unwritten law making the 25th inst. the season's change to summer attire.

The hot wave and continued dry weather enhanced the seriousness of the forest fire situation throughout the state and in some parts of the state sun shone like a fiery ball through the dense pall of smoke.

At the seashore a sultry west wind struggled with varying fortunes against a cool seabreeze for mastery.

REBELS NOW HAVE STRONG ARGUMENT

Will Demand Specific Date For Diaz' Resignation and Want Part in Government.

Juarez, Mex., May 11.—The Insurrectos are determined not only to hold Juarez against any attack, but to prevent a fight in this vicinity if possible. Plans were being laid at the Insurrectos' headquarters today for a force of several hundred men to march south to meet General Rábago, the Federal leader who is reported to be on his way here from Chihuahua with a force estimated at from 800 to 1200. The rebels already have about three hundred men at Casas Grandes, and probably will open fire on Rábago when he arrives there. It is not known what chief will be sent south from Juarez. The town was quiet early today for the first time in several days. The inhabitants slept peacefully in their homes while Insurrecto sentries stood guard. General Navarro, who was paroled with his officers last night, spent the night in the same house with General Francisco I. Madero, Jr. Though the Federal commander now has been given the liberty of the city, he does not deem it safe to be seen much about town because there are said to be several Insurrectos who cherish a grudge against him for alleged bayoneting of the wounded in other battles of the revolution.

Rebel officers, however, have given strict orders not to harm any of the paroled Federals and from the discipline which has been maintained in the Insurrecto force heretofore it is not considered likely that any misdeed will befall them. The Insurrectos today are the conquerors in a town which is the most important capture of the revolution, not only because of the fact that it is a port of entry to the United States, and the Insurrectos believe that in the next twenty-four hours food and supplies will be crossing the line to them unmolested, but because they are now in possession of about 450,000 rounds of ammunition, several machine guns and field pieces, about 700 Mauser rifles and enough ammunition belts and other warlike sundries to wage furious warfare for some time to come.

But though the revolutionists are flushed with victory and some of them eager to pursue the fight with increasing vigor throughout Mexico until the capital of the republic shall have fallen, conservative rebel leaders are hoping that the bloody battle of Juarez will be the last chapter of the military side of the revolution. Having demonstrated their strength in the field, they now wish to turn their attention to the argument of words and public opinion. They are now ready to listen to proposals from the Government and today Senators Braniff and Obregon, go-betweens heretofore, are feeling the opinion of Insurrecto chiefs as to the best way for re-opening peace negotiations.

Comfortably lodged in their new provisional capital, the talking of which the rebels declare will make prospects of recognition by foreign Powers much brighter, the Rebel political leader today conferred with General Madero and revised the demands before the battle. They strengthened them somewhat and will continue to insist on a real participation in governmental affairs and such privileges as the naming of men from their party for governors in fourteen States and for four portfolios in the Cabinet. The attitude of the Rebels on the question of the resignation of President Diaz hardly has crystallized yet. Dr. Vasquez Gomez, one of the Rebel peace commissioners, declared today it was still the paramount consideration on which all prospects for peace hinged. The Rebels declare that their demand that President Diaz make public merely his intention of resigning has been met with such a vague and haughty reply that they now will demand the fixing of an exact time for his retirement. With reference to the contention of the Government provoked the attack on Juarez and that General Madero is not in control of his soldiers, the Rebels openly charge trickery on the part of the Government to disseminate the opinion that a state of anarchy is prevalent in the republic and that therefore it would be fatal for President Diaz to abdicate under such conditions.

The rebels maintain, on the other hand, that in their demands they are asking merely for steps toward a gradual readjustment of the administration of the republic and they believe the automatic transfer of the power to their own political party soon will follow. In having publicly announced that the revolutionists would consent to the naming of the Minister of Foreign Relations, Senor de la Barra, for the all important post of provisional president, Dr. Gomez, for instance, contends that the rebels have practically consented to a continuation in power of the present Government without "the figurehead," as they call President Diaz, at its head. Rebel leaders declare President Diaz has not been in actual control for some time and that the iron hand of the Federal Government is that of Minister Limantour. Advices from Mexico City, they say, tell of the complete mastery of the situation which Minister Limantour and the cabinet have assumed.

Ministers Limantour and de la Barra have been most conspicuous in handling the Government end of the peace negotiations and the rebels suspect that many steps already have been taken without the participation of President Diaz. On the other hand the rebel leaders know President Diaz is the only man who can decide the question of resignation and they intend to bring more military pressure to bear to effect that result. Much interest and curiosity for instance, was displayed by General Madero and his chiefs today in how Mexico City took the rebel victory and what people in the United States thought about it. General Madero believes he has a strong following in Mexico City and on the occasion of rebel successes does not conceal the expectation that his supporters will make a demonstration there. By the resumption of street traffic some time today between Juarez and El Paso, the town will begin its return to normal conditions. Linemen of the telegraph and telephone companies were at work all night while the gas and electric light companies, whose machinery was damaged by the attack, promised a speedy repair.

General Pascual Orpoco, commander of the rebel forces, had blood in his eyes today as he stood by the international bridge and refused to permit any one from El Paso to cross into Juarez, even though they had passed from Colonel Steever through the United States lines. It appears that General Orpoco and his staff last night were invited to a banquet by Mayor Kelley of El Paso, and the United States troops would not permit Orpoco and his officers to cross. The situation with regard to the passage of persons and supplies back and forth, was rapidly becoming aggravated up to the receipt of the orders from Washington, and there was considerable apprehension today that there might be trouble.

General Madero and his wife and General Navarro, the deposed Federal commander rode about the town early today in an automobile. Mrs. Madero fears that disease may be brought on unless the dead be buried quickly and orders were given today for a careful search of all houses and wards for bodies that may have been overlooked yesterday. General Madero told an Associated Press reporter today that many American criminals, pickpockets and suspicious character had arrived in Juarez, giving impression that they are Insurrectos. He has, therefore, ordered, he said, that United States Secret Service men be allowed to cross into Juarez and arrest any criminals whom they know. Every effort, he said, is being made to restore order.

In front of each store sat an Insurrecto, his rifle by his side, but his black eyes peered from under his broad brimmed sombrero at all who loitered about in the streets. Saloons were closed. The Federal officers were loud in their praises of the treatment they received at the hands of the Insurrectos. They were well fed and well cared for generally. Aftermath of the fight of the last three days was heard on all sides today. Many persons think General Navarro never should have surrendered, but one look at the emaciated, exhausted soldiers, their throats arched from hunger and thirst, was convincing proof to the Federal commander that he was saving his men from a terrible fate. The Insurrectos cut off the water supply early in the fight, and took away all provisions as they made their way to the federal strongholds. The Federals had made no preparations for a siege within their own town.

RAILROAD NOTES

Albert B. Preble, foreman carpenter, quietly celebrated the eightieth anniversary of his birth Thursday.

The huge new locomotive of the Pacific type, No. 3641, was sent out over the White Mountain division on Wednesday attached to private car 888 for the purpose of testing the road bed and bridges preparatory for the purpose of drawing the heavy express trains. Superintendent Cummings headed the party of railroad men, the others including Roadmaster Crane, Superintendent of Bridges Fullerton, Frank A. Merrill, assistant chief engineer, and John W. Storrs, the well known bridge engineer.

Fifteen hundred feet of side track will be laid on the McElwain property on the Portsmouth and Dover branch.

OBITUARY

Edward H. Sise.

The death occurred in Everett, Mass., on May 10th, of Edward H. Sise, the eldest son of Edward F. Sise of this city.

He was in his eighty-sixth year and died of general decline. Mr. Sise was a widower, but leaves no children. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Joseph W. Peirce of Middle street, and a brother, Mr. Chas. Sise of Montreal.

The funeral which is to be private, takes place on Friday forenoon at eleven o'clock from the residence of his sister.

Mr. Sise for many years resided in Portland where he was engaged in business, and when the family with whom he resided moved to Everett he accompanied them, and has lived there for a few years. He had much executive ability and was a genial, whole souled, witty man who counted his friends in large numbers and who were as staunch in their regard as was the nature of the man they honored.

ELECTRIC ENGINES FOR SERVICE IN HOOSAC TUNNEL

Eight powerful electric locomotives, each capable of hauling a train of 2000 tons, have been ordered for service through the Hoosac tunnel as a part of the huge electrification plan for the western end of the Boston & Maine road, which goes into effect June 1. Each locomotive will weigh 250,000 pounds.

The present average weight of freight trains is 1250 tons. Besides the increase in the capacity of the average train, the greater speed of the electric engines will increase the tunnel's car capacity per month from 60,000 cars to 80,000.

FRED PARENT HOLDS OUT

Biddeford, Me., May 11—Fred Parent of Sanford, who was recently sold by the Chicago American team to Baltimore of the Eastern League, says he will not join the Orioles. Parent says he could have gone with two of the big league teams had the Chicago management allowed him to do so. Instead he was sent to Baltimore.

"I made a good showing in the three games I played this spring," said Parent, "and the Chicago papers agreed that if I kept up that clip I would have to be taken from the bench. In the face of my good work I was sold away to the Baltimore team, but I will not go there."

Wait on the Game.

The Most Popular of current American poets has turned the light of his verse on the national sport, and with a longing that is vain. To be sure, the poem takes the form of resignation, but only as a blind. Underneath is a wish that is impossible. Says Uncle Walt: "Oh, let us sit like brooding owls, and howl again the same old howls that we put last year.... And in these happy baseball days we'll resurrect each chestnut

GAS Is Coal With The Trouble Taken Out

GAS is really nothing more than coal, only with gas you have the coal less the dirt, ashes and smoke. These have been taken out by the gas company, the weight too, has been taken out, for when you use gas you don't have to carry it up from the cellar in buckets, straining your back in your attempt to do so; all of the drudgery has been removed. The Gas Company has taken everything out of the coal but the heat and that's the one thing you want; this they deliver to you right to the burner of the gas range. You only have to turn a valve and strike a match in order to have it.

PORTSMOUTH GAS CO.

phrase, from out our pile of junk we'll call men boneheads when they try in vain to say a whizzing fly, and say their work is punk. We'll sit and chew the same old rags, and spring again the same old gags, and make the same old bets." But then Uncle Walt, instead of being happily resigned unto the end, winds up with a wish that some gifted, soulful fan would "upon the bleachers sit, and throw some novel sort of fit, and yell out something new." Forget it, Walt. The bleachers are conservative. They acquire a little new junk, year by year, and drop a little of the old, but they never change so rapidly you can notice it. The bleachers are safe and sane. They love the world as it is. The familiar jests and phrases are sauce to the familiar game.—Editorial in Collier's for May 6.

LINE OF EXPERIMENTS

Northwestern Academy to Test Cars in Signal Division Work—Home and Foreign Governments Interested.

Not only this government, but those of European nations, are watching with interest the military experiments with motor cars which have been a feature for several years of the work at the Northwestern Military Academy near Chicago.

Major R. P. Davidson, the commandant at the academy and the originator and director of the various experiments announces that during the coming summer it is his purpose to test out the utility of motor cars in the work of the signal division.

The two Cadillac machines which have figured in carrying out the plans of Major Davidson and his assistants are to be fitted with bodies especially adapted to the new service. They will have telescopic masts, bearing antennae wires whereby wireless messages can be transmitted over distance ranging from 50 to 60 miles. Should it be necessary to send a message farther small balloons have been provided as part of the regular equipment of each car. These little gas bags were especially made in France, and with their aid the antennae wires are carried to any height, making it possible to transmit messages from 300 to 500 miles.

The United States Government is giving the Northwestern students every possible assistance in carrying on their work, the officials at Washington finding that most of their ideas are possible of practical utilization in the military operations of the regular service.

When the academy first entered upon the task of proving the motor car a valuable adjunct to the field operations of an army it acquired a Cadillac and mounted it on a rapid fire gun. The purpose was to show that the automobile could be effectively used against aerial craft. Soon afterward a second Cadillac was pressed into service. Both cars participated in the Glidden tour of 1910, being manned and driven by cadets who lived under military regulations throughout the tour and who regarded the Glidden schedule of travel as applying to their cars as rigidly as though they had been contestants. It was a novel experience for the students, and incidentally proved that a motor car of the right sort is capable of standing up under what would be expected of it in urgent field service, even though carrying several hundred pounds of armament and extra equipment.

Tarbell Exhibition Postponed.

The exhibition of paintings by Edmund C. Tarbell, which was to have taken place this spring in Copley Hall, under the auspices of the Copley Society of Boston, has been postponed until next season. The principal reason for the postponement, it is understood, is that it is rather too late in the season now. The Copley Society was entirely willing to go ahead and carry out the project this spring, but upon reflection Mr. Tarbell concluded that it would be wiser to put the event off. This plan has by no means been abandoned; the date of the event will be announced later.—Boston Transcript.

John Torrey has purchased the McInire residence on Richards avenue and will take up permanent residence there. The house is one of the best in that section.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Adams of Boston are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Garland of Deer street. Mr. Adams was born in Newington, and on Wednesday visited the scene of his youth.

Major Chancery B. Hoyt, commander of the Coast Artillery Corps, passed Tuesday in Concord where a meeting of the advisory board of the state militia was held.

Mrs. John B. Forbes and young daughter, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Trefethen of Mansfield avenue, returned to their home in Hartford, Conn. They were accompanied by Mrs. Trefethen.

President Fred H. Warr of the Country club passed Thursday at the Brookline Country club. Mr. C. W. Bass was also present and played in the annual spring tournament.

Mr. Dwayne Jackson, Ft. Morgan, Colo., writes: We have run our 1909 Cadillac twenty thousand miles and it runs as good as new yet. There is only one thing wrong with the Cadillac and that is, it doesn't cost enough. What's the matter with that?

MAJOR WALDEN COUNCIL LOSES CONTEST

Will Entertain Alpha Council With Banquet on Tuesday Evening.

The membership contest between the Major Waldron Council, Royal Arcanum of Dover and Alpha Council of this city, has ended with Alpha Council the winner by a good margin. The contest was for a supper and accordingly the losers will on Tuesday May 16 at Dover pay the forfeit and serve a banquet. The members of the local council will make the trip by special cars and a large party is expected to be present.

TO COLLECT TAXES AFTER JULY FIRST

Attached to the usual discount on taxes resolution which passed the Council on Wednesday evening was an order to the Collector of Taxes to proceed to collect the poll and personal taxes after July first by law.

In former years the Collector was obliged to wait until December before he could use the authority invested in him by the law to collect these taxes. The result has been that every year the city has had to abate a certain per cent. of the poll taxes owing to the fact that while the people were here on April and possibly remained all summer, they move away before December. Under the new order the Collector can get the poll tax payers during the summer months when there is plenty of work and they are more liable to be able to pay.

THEATRICAL TOPICS

Richard Carle in "Jumping Jupiter." Richard (Himself) Carle, the most distinctive of our stage humorists, will be seen here at the Music Hall on May 18 in his latest success "Jumping Jupiter" which has been the great laughing success of Boston for the last two months. "This only strain is seeing 'Jumping Jupiter' comes on the laughing muscles," said the Boston Journal, which bears out the claim that the Carle play's the funniest musical offering of the season. Karl Hoschna, the famous composer of "Madame Sherry" and a dozen other successes, has written some charming melodies for "Jumping Jupiter" and Prazee & Lederer, the managers, have just equipped it with an entire new outfit of scenery and costumes which will be shown here in all their new splendor and freshness. Edna Wallace Hopper, dainty comedienne, is a specially engaged member of the company, which also includes Willy H. Philbrick, a new and original comedian, and Ina Claire, a talented young initiator.

After having made Boston laugh with his latest musical folly "Jumping Jupiter" for the last two months, Richard (Himself) Carle will present this successful production. Carle fashioned "Jumping Jupiter" over from a farce by Sidney Rosenfeld, adapting it to fit his own peculiar humor and personality. The music by Karl Hoschna, the famous composer of "Madame Sherry" is full of charming melody, and the production is brand new in every detail. Mr. Carle has not been in New England for three years, and his first appearance here as a star, will be a welcome event. Unlike many other stars, Mr. Carle prefers to surround himself the very best possible cast, and the support in "Jumping Jupiter" will include Edna Wallace Hopper (specially engaged) Willy H. Philbrick, a new comedian, Ina Claire, a wonderful young initiator who already rivals Elsie Janis, and a large feminine contingent grouped under the descriptive title of "Some Girls."

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE

In the eighth and final weekly offering of the Aborn English Grand Opera Company at the Boston Opera House, for the week beginning next Monday night, the management are heralding the most unique and attractive presentation of their entire series, the first presentation in Boston, in English, of Jacques Offenbach's last and admittedly his greatest opera comique, "The Tales of Hoffman" ("Les contes d'Hoffman"). This charming composition was first presented in America a score of more years ago but was never repeated until Oscar Hammerstein revived it as a novelty during his first season at the Manhattan Opera House. Shortly after Hammerstein's production of "Les contes d'Hoffman" in French, Milton and Sargent Aborn presented the first production of the same opera in English in the same city under its translated title, "The Tales of Hoffman." Both of these productions of Offenbach's masterpiece were equally successful, and Messrs Aborn kept it in their repertoire in succeeding seasons with increased success.

This year they arranged with Charles Henry Meltzer, the noted librettist and musical critic of the New York AMERICAN and JOURNAL, to write a new translation and, with this new book, but with the original production made by them, "The Tales of Hoffman" will be presented at the Boston Opera House next week. As many as possible of the original American cast have been secured again for their former roles, including the noted coloratura soprano, Elly Barnato, who is returned from Europe especially to sing this opera. Homer Lind, the noted German-American baritone, and equally celebrated as a character actor, has also been especially engaged for the roles of Dr. Miracle and Coppellus both of which he was the first to sing in English. Phil Branson will also return to his original characters of Andreas, Cochenille and Franz, and other members of the cast will be Hertha Shalek as Julietta, Louise Lo Baron as Nicklausse, Eugene Battain as Hoffman, George Crampton as Dapertutto, William Schuster as Spauzanne and Florence Coughlan as Nathanael.
